FOREWORD

CENTENARY COLLEGE takes its name from the fact that it was organized one hundred years after the birth of Methodism. In 1739, the Methodist Movement began in England under John Wesley. In 1839, Centenary offerings in behalf of Christian Education were taken throughout the world, and Centenary College was founded.

The College was organized in Mississippi, but later was removed to Jackson, Louisiana. After a brilliant record of many years at Jackson, the school was finally removed to its present site in Shreveport. Here the doors were opened in 1908. Althongh Centenary possesses a long and honored history, it is confidently believed that the institution is entering the greatest and most effective period yet experienced.

Shreveport, with a population of fifty thousand, is located in North Louisiana, in the heart of the great agricultural, lumber and oil industries and is the railroad center of the section. It is, therefore, easily accessible from all parts of Louisiana and the surrounding states. The water supply is the best, and conditions of healthfulness are unexcelled. The city is beautifully located and is surrounded by rich farm land. The visitor or student never fails to be charmed.

The City of Shreveport offers Centenary students opportunity to observe first hand, modern business methods, law, medicine, agriculture, and other business and professional interests. She brings within her portals each year, great speakers, great singers, great entertainers and great thinkers, and the students of the College have a chance to broaden their vision, develop a richer and fuller appreciation of music and art, and to think with the great thinkers of the age. The ideal of the College is distinctly Christian. The Y. M. C. A. and the great churches of the city are the intimate friends of Centenary students. They are welcomed into these institutions and afforded every advantage to develop a well-rounded Christian life. In short, it is an education alone, a Christian Education, to come to Centenary and live in Shreveport.

Main Building

In rose-and-silver, fronted towards the West,
Our college hears the bustling world swing by.
Shyly withdrawn she crowns her sun-gilt crest;
"Come, seek ye Truth and Light," her holy cry;
The careless hearts of lads her ceaseless quest.

GYMNASIUM BUILDING

Academy Building

I heard young laughter through the grim gray pines;
I saw white pillars gleam, a solemn row;
I felt the noonday sun upon me glow---
Then boys came bursting from their long confines.

President's Home

Flooded with sun and laughter, floor by floor,
With open doorway whence gay greetings pour,
Surely his very home with glowing eyes
Grows like the man it hides and we adore.

The Woods

Because THAT boy walked here, THAT prankish faun,
Who loafs through our classes, stomps our shadowy lawn,
Men shall come here to worship and to shout---
When you and I to long, long night are gone.

STUDENT ACTIVITIES

CENTENARY COLLEGE has not only for her purpose the development of scholarship in her students, but also the development of all-round Christian citizens who know how to think and act. To develop this latter quality, in addition to school work, there are a number of student activities which correspond in a measure, to civic activities in a community. Some of the activities are work, some are play, but all have for their purpose the one end of developing the student physically, mentally, and spiritually into a useful citizen. The faculty guides the students in these activities, but the students always are trained to take the initiative as the purpose is to develop their ability to manage and to think independently.

There are literary societies where a student learns parliamentary usage, to express himself in public, and to debate. There are annual events such as debates, orations, essays, and declamation contests in which keen rivalry is displayed. There is the weekly college newspaper where every student has a chance to learn something of newspaper work. There is the College Annual which requires artists, thinkers, and managers and all must come from the student body. The Y. M. C. A. affords the students a place to develop their spiritual lives, to know each other better and to serve others. There is the band, the quartette, and the glee club which develop the musical talents. All the athletic teams are maintained, and a sound body is assured to those who will but take advantage of the offer.

It can be seen that outside the classroom the student who attends Centenary will be at work, will be thinking, will be learning things that will be of great value in later life. The College is small enough so that every student can take part in some of these activities, and large enough to present problems that require real thought. No activity stands alone. They are all related and all have their proper place in the College life.

THE ACADEMY

Situated on the same campus with Centenary College is the Centenary College Academy. Although under the control of the College administration, the Academy has a separate faculty, and separate buildings and equipment from that of the College.

In the Academy four years of college preparatory work are given under the direction of experienced instructors. Graduates of the Academy are admitted without examination into any college.

The Academy is a member of the Southern Association of Schools and Colleges and, therefore, ranks with any preparatory school in the South.

The capacity of the Academy is limited to about one hundred students. Those wishing to enter next year should make application early.

ATHLETICS AT CENTENARY COLLEGE

"Bo" McMillin, Coach

ATHLETICS, both intercollegiate and within the College, has always taken an important place in student life at Centenary. Foot ball, basket ball, baseball, track, and tennis teams are maintained by the College. Practically every student at Centenary takes some form of athletics and the College authorities are making every effort to see that every student receives his share of the benefits to be derived from this source.

In order to represent Centenary College on any athletic team a student must be in good standing in the College community, of good character, and must be passing at least nine hours of regular college work, and must have passed at least nine hours of his previous term's work in the College. These same principles apply to all college activities. In other words, a boy must be a student before he can represent the College in any intercollegiate activity.

Great success in all branches of athletics is one of Centenary's records for the past year. "Bo" McMillin's Centenary Gentlemen piled up a total of 295 points as against their opponents' 41. "Bo" showed himself to be a remarkable coach and will again guide the Gentlemen to victory next year.

In basketball, Coach Norton's charges "cleaned" the state and made a record tour in other states. Norton also piloted the baseball team through another very successful season. With the addition of a number of new students and with the old men back, an even more fortunate year is assured.

Football Here and There

CENTENARY COLLEGE has a long period of service behind her. She has given to the church, state and nation men who have become great leaders. For almost a century she has served faithfully and well and is today entering upon a new and broader field of service. The years of honorable and wonderfully useful service of this institution have brought with them a legacy of great traditions, numbers of alumni, ex-students and friends.

College years are formative in the life of a boy or girl. Not only that which is taught in the classroom should receive consideration in the selection of a school, but the instructors with whom there is a daily association, the community which surrounds the student, the traditions of the institution he attends, as well as the climatic conditions of the locality, are matters of supreme importance. The prospective patron is invited to visit Shreveport and Centenary and personally investigate conditions.

THE FACULTY

The faculty of Centenary College is made up of men who are giving their lives to the work of Christian ducation. They are all especially prepared for the work of the department in which they teach. Every regular member of the faculty has had special university training and successful experience as a teacher. Among them are men who have received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy from such institutions as Harvard, the University of Illinois and Syracuse University. Still others have done extensive graduate work in Chicago, Columbia, Vanderbilt, and other great institutions. The majority of them have taught for a number of years. They know each other, and they know how to work together. They have helped to create the atmosphere of the school and to make it a great center of Christian Culture. All of them are active members of the church. Their rearing, their academic training, and their personal culture, justify the statement that they are perhaps as well qualified for their work as the samc number of men in any college of like grade in America. Not only are they prepared to instruct in the classroom but they are working with students at all times, assisting them with their life problems and building character that will stand the test of time. They are men who have given themselves to the work of Education in the Christian view of it. They are men in whom the Church and Christian parents can safely trust.

SCHOLARSHIP

Scholarship in any college must always be its first asset. There are other types of schools that may boast other advantages above scholarship. The student with a serious purpose must have scholarship first. Other advantages he may get later. His college must develop scholarship now.

Centenary College maintains a high standard of scholarship. Students are impressed in every way that proficiency in the classroom is their prime purpose and toward the attainment of that end the environmental conditions about the College are made most favorable. Individual attention is given students in all departments and everything tends toward the development of scholarship.

The fact that a number of Centenary students each year go on to the great universities and make good there is a sure indication of the scholarly spirit of the place. We have had numbers of students enter the various professional schools after having taken their preparatory work here. They have all made good.

The Louisiana State Department of Education recognizes the A. B. or B. S. degree from Centenary and grants a teacher's license without examination to any Centenary graduate.

DEPARTMENTS

The various departments of Centenary College offer courses leading to the standard degree of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science. The requirements for the above degrees are fully outlined in the catalog, and specific information on any points may be obtained by writing to the College Office. Work leading to the above degrees may be selected from the various departments as indicated in the catalog.

Students who are preparing themselves to teach will be interested to know that additional courses will be offered in the Department of Education and that the faculty has been increased. They will, therefore, be able to get just what they need along this line.

Students taking pre-professional training will find that they can get the very best instruction in pre-law, pre-medical and pre-engineering courses. All the departments give special attention to such students.

The department of public speaking has recently been added to the College and students can get the best training in this line, besides that which they get in the literary societies.

The School of Commerce on the campus and under the same management offers very superior training in all commercial subjects. Careful attention is given to bookkeeping, banking, economics, commercial law, stenography, typewriting and secretarial work. While pursuing his business course, the student may have the opportunity of attending and taking part in all the activities of a high grade literary college.

ENDOWMENT AND EQUIPMENT

The Endowment Fund of Centenary College is rapidly approaching the million dollar mark. The people of Shreveport, of Louisiana, and of Southern Methodism have responded to every call of the College. There was a liberal response to the Christian Education Movement from which Centenary derived a part. The local campaign, under the direction of the Rotary Club, showed conclusively that the people of Shreveport mean to make Centenary a great college.

The present large endowment, and the increase that will be made, insure the institution permanence and stability. Ample funds are available to employ the best instructors. Improvements are being made along all lines. The money is in competent hands and is being wisely and judiciously expended in order to harvest the greatest and most permanent results.

The buildings and grounds of Centenary College have at present a value conservatively estimated at $350,000.00. Centenary College has a building program which extends over a period of 25 years. When this program is completed, the plant will be one of the best in the country.

The campus is forty acres of beautiful woodland on the eastern border of the city. It is indeed a delightful place for a college. There are stately pines, elms, oaks, in fact, forty different kinds of trees. The land is rolling and well drained. It is a pleasant place to live, entirely fitted for thought and study, and is in itself an inspiration. The property joins one of the best residence sections of the city. One has but to visit the campus to realize fully the wonderful atmosphere that permeates the place.

The Gymnasium---This is a handsome building which houses a splendid basket ball court, bathing facilities and lockers for the use of the athletes. It is also used as an assembly hall.

The present college building is a large brick structure, well built and well equipped.

To satisfy pressing needs a number of frame buildings have been erected, pending the erection of permanent buildings. One of these serves for classrooms, a second houses the Commercial Department, a third contains the College Dining Room and two others serve as dormitories.

There are ten faculty residences on the campus and others will be built during the summer. The Academy building is a two-story building. It is well equipped for the comfort of students.

On the athletic field a grandstand and bleachers provide for the comfort of the spectators at the games.

MISCELLANEOUS

College catalogues are much alike in form. They differ in content, as one offers a wider range of studies than another. You can get much of the personality of a school from its literature.

A personal visit would be the surest way to find out what you might expect from the College. Come to Shreveport, and meet the faculty who are giving their lives to the cause of Christian Education---men who know the students on the playground as well as in the classroom. Note the personal interest they take in the student's physical and moral welfare as well as as their intellectual training. Wander about on the campus and sense the spirit of the place. Visit the city, become acquainted with the people. See for yourself.

Sometimes a personal visit is not practicable. The next best way is to write just what you want; tell us the course of study you would like to take up and say what work you have already had. We will be glad to go into detail, even if it takes a dozen or more letters to tell you fully what you want, and to advise you from the standpoint of the College. Even if you do not come to Centenary, this may help you to choose elsewhere more wisely. We will try to give you frank, unbiased counsel.

You see it is perhaps more vital to the College that no young man or woman shall come here if Centenary doesn't suit the individual and he does not suit the College, than it is to the student. Centenary ideals and traditions are being built on this basis and it is absolutely necessary that both the students and the College be suited to each other. We try to select our students just as you want to pick your college.

You will be interested to know that Centenary College employs a staff of physicians to care for the health of the college community. This staff inspects regularly the buildings and grounds to see that they are in a healthy condition.

You will also be interested to know that the people of Shreveport who are personally acquainted with the College, the faculty and the work that is being done, are putting their sons and daughters in Centenary instead of sending them away to school. Two hundred and four students living in Shreveport are attending Centenary College. One hundred and five of them are in the College and ninety-nine in the Academy.
